What Patients and Providers Say

Booking medical appointments through Google or Facebook is the ultimate convenience for me.

I always get a thrill that I can book a doctor's appointment on my own, whether it's first thing in the morning or last thing at night.

The reminders I get from my doctor's office about important appointments keeps me on the right track with my health.

It was a pleasant surprise that when I found a doctor online, I could book an appointment right then and there without any login.

We're pleased we no longer waste valuable time scheduling patients over the phone and following up on missed appointments.

It's nothing short of amazing how this technology intuitively follows the rules we set in our scheduling system.

The tight integration between our patient engagement solutions make our systems work like well-oiled machines.

Our patients tell us they like seeing their doctor's availability and easily making an appointment, all without having to login.
